Dividend Growth in the Emerging Markets

Net Dividend Income Earned
Per Initial $100 Investment on 12/31/19

■ Seafarer Overseas Growth and Income Fund ■ Bloomberg Emerging Markets Index

Dividends are presented on a "net" basis, i.e. net of withholding taxes in foreign markets.

Dividends are calculated based on a standardized initial investment of $100 in both the Seafarer Overseas Growth and Income Fund (SIGIX) and the Bloomberg Emerging Markets Large, Medium and Small Cap Index (index code: EMLS). The $100 investment is assumed to be deployed on 12/31/19 and held continuously (with no-reinvestment of subsequent dividends) through 12/31/25.

Past performance does not guarantee future results.

Investors should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses carefully before making an investment decision. This and other information about the Funds are contained in the Prospectus, which may be obtained at www.seafarerfunds.com/prospectus or by calling (855) 732-9220. Please read the Prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

Important Risks: An investment in the Funds involves risk, including possible loss of principal. International investing involves additional risks, including social and political instability, market and currency volatility, market illiquidity, and reduced regulation. Emerging markets are often more volatile than developed markets, and investing in emerging markets involves greater risks. Fixed income investments are subject to additional risks, including but not limited to interest rate, credit, and inflation risks. Value investments are subject to the risk that their intrinsic value may not be recognized by the broad market. An investment in the Funds should be considered a long-term investment.

Fund holdings are subject to change.

The Bloomberg Emerging Markets Large, Medium and Small Cap Index is a float market-cap-weighted equity index that covers 99% of the market capitalization of the emerging markets. Index code: EMLS. It is not possible to invest directly in an index.
